SERENITY

Yoga & Meditation Website — Project Report

HTML & CSS Website Development

Includes complete source code and website output preview

1. Introduction

Serenity is a responsive educational yoga and meditation website designed to introduce beginner-friendly yoga poses, meditation techniques, instructor profiles, class schedules, membership plans, and wellness articles. The project uses HTML5 for page structure and CSS3 for styling and responsive layout.

2. Project Objectives

• Create a welcoming and easy-to-navigate wellness website.

• Explain common yoga poses and mindfulness practices.

• Present instructors and weekly classes in a clear format.

• Compare sample membership plans and prices.

• Provide wellness articles and a responsive layout for mobile screens.

3. Technologies Used

HTML5: Defines semantic sections, navigation links, images, articles, tables, buttons, and footer. CSS3: Controls the green-and-cream palette, typography, grids, cards, hover effects, focus outlines, spacing, and mobile breakpoint. JavaScript is excluded from this report and the provided code copy, as requested.

4. Website Features

Navigation and hero: The header links to all major sections, and the hero introduces the site with two call-to-action links.

Yoga poses: Three image cards describe Mountain Pose, Tree Pose, and Child’s Pose.

Meditation and mindfulness: Three cards explain mindful breathing, body awareness, and guided meditation.

Instructor profiles: Three sample instructors are displayed with images, names, and teaching areas.

Weekly class schedule: A table presents five sample classes with days, times, and instructors.

Membership plans: Basic, Standard, and Premium sample plans show monthly pricing and included features.

Wellness articles: Three cards introduce morning routines, everyday yoga, and mindfulness.

Inspirational quote and footer: A motivational message and back-to-top link complete the site.

5. Development Process

• Plan the sections and navigation structure.

• Create semantic HTML for content, cards, schedule, plans, and footer.

• Style the site using green, cream, and soft purple color blocks.

• Use CSS Grid to arrange cards across screen sizes.

• Add responsive adjustments for screens up to 650 px wide.

• Render and inspect the website output in a browser.

6. Advantages

The website is easy to run in a browser, uses a consistent calming design, supports responsive card layouts, provides clear navigation, and can be updated without a complicated development environment.

7. Limitations

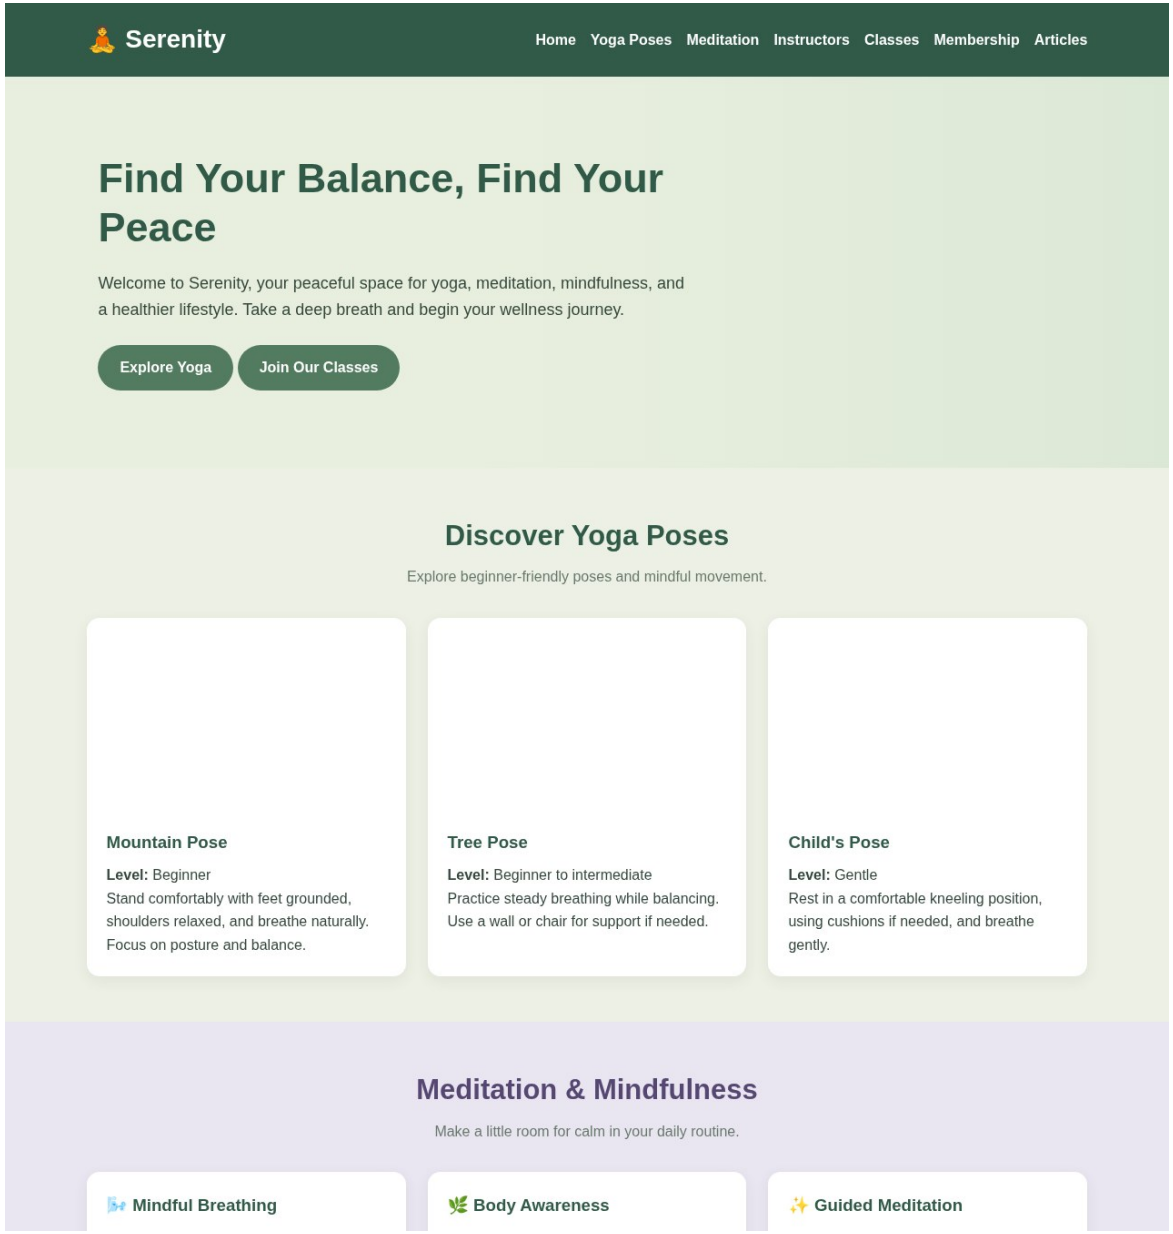

This is an educational demonstration, not a live class-booking or payment platform. Instructors, schedules, and membership prices are sample content. With JavaScript excluded, the Choose Plan buttons no longer show a selection message or perform any action. External images require an internet connection. There is no user account, payment processing, or backend database.

8. Conclusion

The Serenity project demonstrates the use of HTML and CSS to build an organized, attractive, responsive wellness website. Future development could include real class registration, verified instructor details, accessible booking, secure payments, and regularly updated articles.
